About Tamar Geller

Over the last 30 years as a celebrity dog trainer and working with celebrities as well as people from all walks of life, Tamar realized that dogs mirror many of the same type of relationship and miscommunication issues that people often encounter. Tamar found that by addressing how to understand dogs and how to MINDFULLY and PLAYFULLY modify their behavior, people can positively impact all relationships in their lives!

As a matter of fact, it was Oprah who said to Tamar: “you are not really a dog trainer... “(Which at first made Tamar gasp for air) ... “You are a life-coach for dogs and their people”. We all want to connect with others but often times we don’t know how to read the other person properly or how to communicate easily what it is that we feel or need.

Tamar Geller - A life-coach for dogs and their people”.

How Better Understanding Dogs and Mindfully Modifying Their Behavior Helps You To Build Loving Relationships With Everyone In Your Life

In a talk full of fun stories, games and analogies, Tamar gets the audience to have many aha moments. Moments where they are given clear examples and frameworks on how to understand other people and dogs in their lives; all leading up to insights on how to better understand themselves. It’s an uplifting and encouraging talk that gets people excited to start implementing simple changes in their lives at home and/or at work.

Tamar’s journey started more than 30 years ago as an Intelligence officer of the elite Special Forces in Israel, where she was able to study the behavior of different leaders in the Middle East. She then went on to help in the behavioral study of wolves in the Israeli desert. While studying wolves in the desert she woke from a dream that told her that she “must work with dogs”. This dream made her change her plans from becoming a psychologist and propelled her to becoming the resident dog expert for the Today show and to be blessed to have her client Oprah Winfrey launch her book to become a New York Times bestseller which went on to be translated into many languages.

Tamar soon saw that when following her heart, doors opened and the impossible became possible. Tamar sees our relationships with dogs and with people as a beautiful (although tough at times) spiritual journey. Tamar believes that we get the invitation from life to grow into the love that we are and no one better to teach us than our dogs. Tamar has presented at many conferences in the animal world, at psychology departments of universities and lectured on Mindful dog training to veterinary students. Tamar has also led many corporate team building meetings and retreats.

At the request of General Petraeus, Tamar created a non-profit program for active military and veterans and spoke regularly at Camp Pendleton, the VA and DAV.

Oprah Winfrey calls Tamar "A life coach for dogs and their people". She believes that working with Tamar is a life changing experience. A New York Times best-selling author, Tamar is not a regular dog trainer. Through her revolutionary dog training method, she teaches people how to understand and be understood in all their relationships: romantic, parenting, professional life, etc.

Tamar, an ex-intelligence officer with the Israeli Special Forces, not only rejects the notion of being a dominant leader, she encourages the empowering leadership style (think Gandhi) she learned from the wolves. The wolves taught Tamar you are as strong as your weakest link and therefore you must learn how to work together as a team.

Tamar outlines why people and dogs behave the way they do and the danger of misunderstanding someone's behavior. As a misunderstood child herself, she helps not only dogs to be able to be understood but also people who can often feel isolated in their lives and relationships. It's a life changing experience that impacts all areas of life: business, home, parenting, and personal relationships. Tamar's storytelling is inspiring and heartfelt. An event everyone will remember and share.
